

The salary stated in the individual labor contract must be at the minimum gross salary in the economy.

In the case of highly qualified workers, it will be at least 2 times the average gross salary in the economy.